

Argumentative Writing Sprint Prompt

Task:

Choose one argumentative topic that interests you and could be debated from both sides. Your topic should be something people disagree about and that you could research using reliable sources. (Use the possible topics list if you do not already have an idea)

In your writing sprint, do the following:

1. Clearly state your argumentative topic as a question or claim.
2. Briefly explain one side of the argument.
3. Briefly explain the opposing side of the argument.
4. Write 1–2 sentences explaining why this topic would be good to research.

Guidelines:

- Your topic must have two reasonable sides (not a yes/no with an obvious answer).
- Avoid topics that are too personal or impossible to research.
- Focus on school, technology, sports, social issues, or topics that affect teens.

Reminder:

This is a writing sprint—keep writing the whole time. Don't worry about spelling or grammar. Focus on getting your ideas down quickly.
