

(Handout)

Name: _____

Quote: _____

Say What does the text say?	Means • What does the author mean? • How can this information be interpreted? • What can be inferred?	Matters • Why does this information matter? • Why is this significant? • What are the implications or consequences of the information? • How does this connect to other ideas?

Name: Ms. McMillan

(model)

Quote: "I want to go on living even after my death" (629).

Say What does the text say?	Means • What does the author mean? • How can this information be interpreted? • What can be inferred?	Matters • Why does this information matter? • Why is this significant? • What are the implications or consequences of the information? • How does this connect to other ideas?
Anne wants people to remember her after she has past away.	Anne means that even though her life may end, she hopes her words, thought, and experiences will live on. Her story survived her and continues to reach people.	This quote matters as it shows the power of writing - especially during times of injustice. This quote reminds us why personal accounts from the Holocaust are so important - to create empathy and help events like the Holocaust never happen again.