

Say-Mean-Matter for Chemical Change

- SAY: The substance changes into an entirely new substance with different properties.
- MEAN: The original atoms and molecules are rearranged, and new chemical bonds are formed, resulting in a different chemical identity.
- MATTER: The total amount of mass remains the same before and after the change (Law of Conservation of Mass), even if the form changes (e.g., solid turns into gas and ash). Matter cannot be created or destroyed.